LUNCHEON MEETING, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 22ND

11:30 a.m. Social Hour 12:00 noon Luncheon

Speakers:

David Solo, President and CEO, Marin and Southern Sonoma Boys and Girls Club

Mike Ghilotti, President and CEO, Ghilotti Construction

Program: It is a new year, a new beginning and a time for new resolutions and goals. Each year MRWF adopts a special community project to which we give our support. Our selection this year is an aggressive and a bold one, "THE MARIN AND SOUTHERN SONOMA BOYS AND GIRLS CLUB." This excellent organization survives on donations only and is in a constant state of need. Its mission is to inspire and empower ALL these young people to reach their full potential as productive, caring and responsible citizens.

With that, we have invited the President and CEO of Marin and Southern Sonoma Boys and Girls Club, David Solo, and the President and CEO of Ghilotti Construction, Mike Ghilotti, to give us their thoughts on this "life changing" organization.

This project is an exciting and informative opportunity. It is the most challenging, joyful, and rewarding project to which we are giving our energy. We have possibly lost sight of "passing the torch" to our community's children and how it is integral to securing our community's future. Come listen and share in the possibilities of what we can do in creating a difference from the "bottom up" in young lives. It truly surpasses all political views.

It takes just one of us to open a door that will place a child on the path to a great future. Think of what we can do as a group to make a difference and be a part of the solution in our Community.

Be Informed, Be Educated, Be Involved!

CO-PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Reference: inittowin Blogpost article – "Why Obamacare is a Fantastic Success" by Wayne Allyn Root – Dec. 15, 2013

Obama's hero and mentor was Saul Alinsky -- a radical Marxist intent on destroying capitalism. Alinsky's stated advice was to call the other guy "a terrorist" to hide your own intentions. This technique is a planned purposeful attack. The tell-tale sign isn't the disastrous start to Obamacare, or the devastating effect the new taxes are having on the economy. The real sign that this strategy is a purposeful attack upon capitalism is how many Obama administration members and Democratic Congressmen are openly calling Tea Party Republicans and anyone who wants to stop Obamacare "terrorists."

The people trying to purposely hurt America, capitalism and the middle class...are calling the patriots by a terrible name to confuse and distract the public. Obamacare is a raving, rollicking, fantastic success.

Obamacare was intended to bring about the Marxist dream -- redistribution of wealth. Rich people, small business owners, and the middle class are being robbed, so that the money can be redistributed to poor people. Obamacare was intended to wipe out the middle class and make them dependent on government. Even Obama's IRS predicts that health insurance for a typical American family by 2016 will be $20,000 per year. But how would middle class Americans pay that bill and have anything left.

As a bonus, Obamacare is intended to kill every decent paying job in the economy, creating only part-time jobs. Why? Just to make sure the middle class is trapped, with no way out. Obamacare is intended to bankrupt small business, and therefore starve donations to the GOP. Without donations, a political party ceases to exist. That's the point of Obamacare. Obama is bankrupting his political opposition and drying up donations to the GOP. Obamacare is intended to make the IRS all-powerful. It puts the IRS in charge of overseeing 15% of the U.S. economy. The IRS has the right because of Obamacare to snoop into every aspect of your life, to go into your bank accounts, to fine you, to intimidate you. And Obama and his socialist cabal have access to your deepest medical secrets. By law your doctor has to ask your sexual history. That information is now in the hands of Obama and the IRS. Obamacare is intended to unionize 15 million health-care workers. That produces $15 billion in new union dues. That money goes to fund Democratic candidates and socialist causes -- thereby guaranteeing Obama's friends never lose another election. This is a serious, purposeful attempt to high-jack America and destroy capitalism.

MEMBERSHIP MATTERS

As I write this article, the smells and sounds of Christmas abound, which means the New Year is not far behind; and that also means the beginning of a new year for the MRWF! The 2014 dues are currently being collected and we look forward to all of you joining us for another year of camaraderie, information and most importantly ACTION -- this is THE year!

We will again be running a membership contest with a prize going to the member who brings in the most new members. If you were a new member in 2013, please let me know how you heard about our group, and if you were introduced by a current member, who it was? I have this information for some of you, but not all, so you may be receiving an email or phone call in the new year. Our 2013 winner will be announced at the January meeting.

In 2013, we exceeded the previous year's membership, which is always our goal! I have received dues from some of you, but now is the time to get me your checks, cash or credit card information. Also, please let me know if there have been any changes in your life -- new name, address, telephone number and most particularly, email address! Also, please don't forget your preference for receiving the Newsletter -- email is always appreciated, but snail mail or both are options.

Help the MRWF, and our country, by bringing like-minded friends to our luncheon meetings and the Friday night Satellite Group. Remember, membership in the MRWF automatically gives you membership in the California CFRW and the National NFRW -- all multiplying our voices. Regular

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY PRINCIPLES - OUR CENTRAL FOCUS THEN AND NOW

In 1854, anti-slavery activists organized themselves into a new political party, the Republican Party, which would eventually become the mightiest force for individual liberty in the history of the world. Within just a few years, Republicans would control both Houses of Congress, a majority of U.S. state governorships, and the White House.

The Republican Party became the most effective political organization in the history of the world in advancing the cause of freedom by staying true to its founding principles. The mission that President Lincoln described for our party, "to lift the artificial weights from all shoulders and clear the paths of laudable pursuit for all", remains our central focus today.

We started our party with the express intent of protecting the American people from the Democrats' pro-slavery policies that expressly made people inferior to the state. Today, the animating spirit of the Republican Party is exactly the same as it was then: free people, free minds, free markets, free expression, and unlimited individual opportunity.

VOTER REGISTRATION

A new year begins and it is an important year! We will be electing new senators and representatives. The election in November will determine whether President Obama controls more of our lives and is able to fulfill his dreams of a socialist nation. His liberal base is eroding and it is evident with the recent headline editorial that read "Obama Must Restrain Spying". This assessment is new for the San Francisco Chronicle which I have always thought of as being a very liberal paper. Spying is just one issue that is waking up many Americans today. Where was the President during "Fast and Furious", Benghazi and even Obamacare? He met with Kathleen Sebelius just once in the three years prior to its release. What about increased government surveillance? He loves to blame his problems on someone else.

I see an excellent opportunity this spring for us to register new Republicans with more Latinos, young people and even some African-Americans coming to our table. They are waking up and are becoming more aware of just what this President is all about. I hope you will join me.

MRWF WOMAN OF THE YEAR 2013

Ilene Meyers, Women of the Year 2013 on the Right, with President, Cindy Eisenhower

Ilene Meyers has been with the club a very long time. She has supported candidates here in Marin County, the State of California and on a National Level not only with money but with her time and attention. Unlike so many Republicans she wears her party everyday and in every way. Not many Republicans drove around the county proudly displaying their Romney/Ryan sticker or their McCain/Palin sticker on their vehicles but she did. She has worked tirelessly at campaign headquarters not just in the last election but in every election. Unlike so many she doesn't just talk about changing this county she runs for office and currently serves as an alternate on the Marin County Central Committee.

Thanks again to all who volunteered. I really appreciate it! Please call me at 415-381-8078 or e-mail me to get on the list. bonniers81@comcast.net.

European Model?

Date: 12/22/13

Source: <http://www.cato.org/blog/lessons-dutch-welfare-reform>

Welfare advocates regularly urge Americans to look to the European welfare state as a model. At least in the case of the Netherlands, they might be on to something. The Dutch have just announced a massive reform of their welfare system, designed to reduce dependency and put a new emphasis on work. ... According to the Dutch government, the reforms will ensure that welfare is seen as “a safety net, rather than a right.”

What the Dutch apparently understand is that, in the long run, welfare dependency hurts the very people it is designed to help. ...

Debt, Young ‘Had’

Date: 12-21-13

... When interest rates creep up, the cost of servicing the national debt may claim one-third of the yearly federal budget. The millennial generation will come of age to pay higher taxes and receive fewer government services to cover for prior generations who wanted more things on credit billed to their grandchildren. ... the huge debt; young people will largely pay for it over the next half-century ... “Hope and change” benevolent government sounded great to the young and idealistic. What was left out was that a captivated cohort was taken for granted and thereby seen as an easy mark to pay for it. In short, young people have been had.

Fairness Goes Out The Window

Date: 12-21-13

Source: <http://swampland.time.com/2013/12/20/obamacare-mandate-delay/print/> from Time!

Why the Latest Obamacare Delay Is the Biggest One Yet

This time it’s about fairness.

When fairness goes out the window, you know politics has caused the White House to take its Obamacare scramble to a whole new level. The administration said Thursday night that people with canceled policies will not be subject to the individual mandate in 2014. This is huge ... [It] creates just the kind of uneven playing field Obamacare was supposed to eliminate ... Sebelius is essentially implying that a situation the Obama administration has rightly anticipated for years ... creates a special kind of unforeseen “hardship.” ... There is no reasonable interpretation of these guidelines that lines up with what Sebelius is saying now. ... Up until this point, there was a plausible argument to be made that most of the other ACA exceptions, exemptions and delays announced in the last year were made in the name of fairness. ...

Some People Are More Equal Than Others

Date: 12-20-13 from Ezra Klein

Source: <http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/wonkblog/wp/2013/12/19/the-obama-administration-just-delayed-the-individual-mandate-for-people-whose-plans-have-been-canceled/>

... The individual mandate includes a “hardship exemption.” ... having your insurance plan canceled counted as “an unexpected natural or human-caused event.” For these people, in other words, Obamacare itself is the hardship. ... Normally, the individual mandate applies to anyone who can purchase qualifying insurance for less than 8 percent of their income. ... it’s hard to argue that it’s right for the currently uninsured but wrong for people whose plans were canceled.

MRWF's CAPITOL MUSE

Edwina Burke

Date: 12/20/13 Washington D.C.

What follows is the heartwarming tale of one Republican's discovery of a jewel amidst the ashes of a bombed-out gubernatorial campaign. Of course, it also concerns our national catastrophe des ages: Obamacare.

Remember how you felt the day after the 2008 Presidential Election? And how you felt the day after the 2012 Presidential Election? That's how I felt the day after Virginia's November 5th election, when my radio-alarm woke me with the news that Clinton bundler, Terry McAuliffe, had defeated Republican stalwart Ken Cuccinelli in the race for governor.

"Why the grief?" you ask. "After all, it's just one State's off-year race for governor."

Three reasons: First, Virginia carries psychological importance for us Washington D.C. Republicans because it votes Republican often enough to exude a vaguely conservative zeitgeist. Since 1970, Virginians elected six Republican governors in eleven races, compared to Marylanders who elected one Republican governor in six races and D.C. residents who elected no Republican mayors in six races. D.C. Puppies ford the Potomac occasionally just to inhale Virginia's relatively companionable political atmosphere. So, naturally, it stings us when Virginia goes blue.

Second, Terry McAuliffe isn't just a run-of-the-mill Democrat. Among the truest-of-the-true-blue, he's an old-school Clintonite hack, a throw-back to the Bubba years that taught American children so much about sex and the meaning of "is." In effect, McAuliffe's victory represents a significant leg up on Hillary's capture of Virginia's thirteen Electoral College votes in 2016. That is a bad thing indeed.

Last—and most wrenching of all— Virginians elected the pro-Obamacare candidate instead of the anti-Obamacare candidate after six full weeks of being flattened like hot highway pavement under Healthcare.gov's crushing 'roll-out.'

The conservative mind reels.

How to explain this defeat? Well, there's the money thing. The funding gulf between McAuliffe and Cuccinelli was as wide as the Grand Canyon—so wide that McAuliffe had enough change left-over to personally finance the campaign of a Libertarian 'spoiler' who siphoned votes from that ever-present cadre of third-party ideologues (a.k.a. "suckers") who might otherwise have voted for the Republican. Also, Cuccinelli got only tepid support from the State and national Republican Party establishment, who were either disheartened by Cuccinelli's early 20-point polling deficit or (more's the pity!) disturbed by his rigorous conservatism. Finally, Cuccinelli failed to fully and promptly tout his anti-Obamacare record as Virginia's Attorney General, failed to counter McAuliffe's "Republican war on women" snake-oil, and failed to exploit McAuliffe's ultra-extreme support for any abortion at anytime for any reason (even sex selection).

Those are the campaign's ashes.

Here's the jewel: McAuliffe's win turned out to be very narrow. The Democrat's presumed cake-walk morphed into a marathon slog as Cuccinelli battled his way to a mere 2.5% deficit in final voting. Within days of the election, the vote tally threw liberal punditry into panic mode, and sent a platoon of electorally-vulnerable Democrat senators knocking frantically on the President's door, talking "delay, repeal, repair" and sounding almost exactly like Ted Cruz sounded in October.

True, it takes effort to find this gem. After all, the Republican lost.

So no, it's not a diamond; it's cubic zirconia. But it still shines.
